

Thomas Winkler

Director Software Development

- +49. 341. 4 92 87 00
- Write an Email

The internet is not only for surfing. Rather, it can provide a universal platform for business process management. An increased utilization of the internet as a platform for information, communication, and transaction allows companies to design internal and external processes more efficiently.

Our Internet related services range from content management based web sites to portals with user-specific access, and from intranet and extranet solutions to backend system integration.

itCampus' distributed solutions include individual software solutions and multi-client/multi-server applications based on modern internet technologies. A combination of different solutions accessible via internet interfaces facilitates the spatial and temporal distribution of work.